

Intersectionality and Environmental and Sustainability Education: Connecting the Dots between Sexism, Sizeism, and Speciesism

Dr. Connie Russell

Dr. Connie Russell
Lakehead University

Very few scholars bring gender, body size, and animality together in their analyses and fewer still include other axes of oppression such as those based on race, class, sexuality, and ability. In this presentation, I will draw on examples from my research and teaching to argue that there is much theoretical, pedagogical, and activist potential in engaging in such intersectional analyses, focusing particularly on the connections between sexism, sizeism, and speciesism and their implications for environmental education.

October 8th, 2015, 3PM CST

College of Education, Room 1235 (SERI)

To join online visit: <http://www.webex.com/>, Meeting number: 199 132 869

RSVP for connection instructions: andrew.bieler@usask.ca, For support call: 306-966-4263

UNIVERSITY OF SASKATCHEWAN

Sustainability Education
Research Institute

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION
SERI.USASK.CA